Explore storytelling in the dynamic urban city of Toronto.

Tell insightful and engaging stories in new ways. Master professional storytelling techniques for online, print, audio, visual, and social media and learn how to understand, communicate and interact with diverse audiences.

Be ahead of the curve when you graduate with real-world reporting experience in the country's most vibrant, diverse and exciting city that is also home to the country's leading media organizations. Build a portfolio in professional writing and advanced multimedia production using our industry-standard editing suites, latest technologies, and professional-grade newsroom experiences.

GO INTERNATIONAL

From Australia to the Netherlands to Hong Kong, our students can learn while they see the world. Study abroad as an exchange student for a semester in your third year, enroll in a short travel intensive or participate in one of several international virtual courses that let you collaborate with like-minded students on a global scale.

AWARDS + SCHOLARSHIPS

Our students have access to more than $140,000 each year through scholarships and awards. These funds recognize the stories they've produced and academic achievements met, and help encourage international learning opportunities, or meeting financial challenges.

INTERNSHIP

Gain valuable experience by choosing a work placement in a newsroom, magazine, public relations agency, or other media role in one of the country's top organizations while earning a course credit.

CAPSTONE EXPERIENCES

In your final year, you'll produce a major project such as a documentary, podcast or magazine feature. Students in our working newsroom, On The Record, produce stories about our local community for online, TV newscasts, podcasts and a newspaper, while other students write and produce an award-winning and leading Canadian long-form magazine, the Review of Journalism.
